

WPO signs new asset management mandate for 402MW wind portfolio in Greece

Dublin, 8th September

WPO, an independent European leader in technical and commercial asset management for renewable energy, has been awarded several contracts by Aer Soléir to manage 402 MW of wind farm assets spread across the Peloponnese and Northern Greece.

This agreement strengthens WPO's presence in Southern Europe and confirms the trust placed in the company's expertise by leading renewable energy investors and operators. Under the new mandate, WPO will deliver technical and commercial management services, ensuring optimised performance, compliance, and long-term value creation for Aer Soléir's wind portfolio.

"We are delighted to have WPO on board as a trusted partner as we bring these major projects on stream and support the expansion of renewable energy across the region", said Yannick Godin, Head of Asset Management at Aer Soléir.

"This new partnership highlights our ability to adapt to different local market needs while maintaining the highest European standards in asset management", commented Duncan Levie, Managing Director of WPO.

With this mandate, WPO consolidates its position as a trusted partner for renewable energy asset owners where it already provides operations management services to more than 10 GW of renewable assets across 15 countries, providing independent, data-driven expertise that covers the full spectrum of technical, commercial, and financial asset management. With more contracts to follow, WPO now employs several staff across Greece in addition to over 130 staff across Europe.

About WPO
